Scandinavian Skincare Systems UK launches new skincare range

Scandinavian Skincare Systems UK has launched MÖ Scandinavian Cosmeceuticals, a range of products that includes professional strength peels.

According to the company, the cosmeceutical range targets skin on a molecular level, speeding up the cell renewal process.

The company's flagship product is the Stem Cell Corrector, which uses the stem cells of a Swiss apple to aim to regenerate cells in patients' skin.

CEO of Scandinavian Skincare Systems Paul Olavesen-Slabbe explained that the formulations are clinically tested to reduce wrinkles, improve elasticity, enhance collagen production, balance sebum properties and smooth irritated skin. The new range is paraben-free, natural and organic, and vegan certified with no animal ingredients. The products are available to aesthetic medical professionals via the company's online shop, which is closed to the general public.
